LOCALS.

Watch for the circus parade Saturday at 11 o'clock.

Sun Brothers circus will be here to-morrow. Don't miss seeing it.

There will be an ice cream supper given to-night at the Baptist Institute to which the public is cordially invited.

In to-day's issue appears the official announcement of Mr. Nathaniel Parker, of Black's precinct, as a candidate for the office of Jailer of Knox county. Mr. Parker is forty-six years old, and while he has lived all his life in this county, except three years spent in Laurel, he has never filled but one office, that of Constable, and has been content to help his friends into office.

He now comes before the Republicans of this county asking their support, and if elected, to the office he is seeking, would no doubt make a splendid official.

The closing exercises of Union College were begun last Friday night, and the chapel was crowded to see the little folks in their interesting entertainment.

On Saturday night the audience was highly entertained with a splendid musicale.

Sunday morning the baccalaureate sermon was preached by President Faulkner in the College Chapel to a large and appreciative audience.

On Monday evening the society event of the week was staged when Enoch Arden was played by the senior class to a full house.

Tuesday evening was commencement night and the program as published last week, was carried out in full.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather there was not such a large audience present, but all were well pleased with the manner in which they were entertained.

Miss Roxye Wilson, in her oration on the "American Girl," was considered very fine by all who heard her.

The ice business, which has heretofore been run by the Costello Drug Co., changed hands Wednesday, and the same is now in the hands of M. Cannon and Son, who say they will reduce the price from one cent a pound to three-quarters of a cent. We hope them success.

Teachers' Examination.

The first examination of teachers in this county was held last week. There were 56 applications for certificates; 6 received first-class, 14 received second class; 8 received third class, and 27 failed to pass on the first examination and will have to try again.

The next examination will be held on the 17th and 18th of June, when those who failed and who desire, can try again.

Troubles Soon Forgotten.

John Helton, aged about 45 years, of Black's precinct, lost his wife by death on Wednesday, May 11, and Mr. Nathan Parker was called upon to make the coffin in which she was buried.

Just two weeks later on, Wednesday, May 25, Mr. Parker was again called upon to write a certificate for a marriage license, as Mr. Helton had found his two weeks of single life rather lonesome had decided to launch again upon the matrimonial sea.

Mrs. Helton No. 2, was Miss Marguerette, the sixteen-year-old daughter of James Helton, a distant relative of the groom.

PERSONALS.

Mrs. O. C. McClung and daughter, of Burnside, are visiting Mrs. McClung's mother, Mrs. Carrie Dickinson, of this place.

Dr. E. B. Dishman was practicing his profession in Coalport the earlier part of the week.

James Pursifull, of Flat Lick, was in town Monday doing business with the County Judge.

Quite a number of people from this place were among Rev. Myers' congregation Sunday at Artemus.

Alex Sommer, a prominent stove dealer, returned home last Friday from an extensive business trip in the vicinity of Chattanooga, Tenn.

R. D. Collins, of Georgetown, representing a New York drug company, was in town last Monday and paid this office a pleasant call. He has been on the road for the past two months and has not been home since he started out the latter part of March. He will reach Georgetown by Saturday.

Nelson Gray, of Flat Lick, was a pleasant caller at this office last Monday.

Mrs. James D. Black and daughter, Miss Gertrude, were in Danville this week, attending commencement exercises of Caldwell College.

Miss Georgie C. Black, of this place, who has been in Danville, Ky., attending Caldwell College, returned home Thursday afternoon.

S. B. Dishman returned home Thursday from Catlettsburg, where he has been several days on business.

John L. Dozier is on the sick list this week, suffering with an attack of rheumatism.

Dr. Baker and family have given up the Hotel Knox and moved to Jellico, Tenn., where they will reside for the future.

R. W. Cole has been out this week on the road as traveling salesman in the place of N. W. Plank, who is keeping store in this place.

Miss Sudie Smith, of Flat Lick, is the guest this week of her sister, Mrs. W. H. McDonald. She paid this office a pleasant call Wednesday afternoon and was presented with the handsome brooch which had been awarded her in the prize contest.

Miss Ethel Fellows and brother Ray, left Wednesday night for their home in Somerset.

Miss Weaver, a Union College teacher, left for her home Wednesday night.

H. A. Moore, who for the past year has been in the Kansas oil fields, returned home the earlier part of the week.

Crude Thoughts as they Fall from the Editorial Pen. Pleasant Evening Reveries.

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

A mother's heart, like primroses, opens most beautifully in the evening of life.

MANY children develop into gloomy, morbid, bitter men and women for lack of a happy childhood.

IF instead of a gem or even a flower, we would cast the gift of a happy thought into the heart of a friend, that would be giving as the angels give.

WHEN you find a home where all have learned the important lesson of helping one another, there you will find the perfection of true home happiness.

WHEN rolling years shall cease to move, when the days of all men have been numbered, and when the earth shall have wandered away through space and been lost, mother love will still live on as the undying as the throne of God.

A cheerful atmosphere is important to happy home life. It is hard for children to be good when they are exposed to an incessant hail-storm of fault-finding from their parents. It is very difficult for a wife to maintain a calm and charmingly sweet demeanor when her husband is critical or sullen and takes all her tender efforts with indifferent appreciation.

WE would say keep all knowledge of evil possible out of a child's life. Ignorance of this is the charm of childhood and youth, and its joyfulness. Show them the right side of all that comes to their knowledge. Because evil knowledge will come sooner or later is no reason for hastening it. Do not blast the bud for fear the blossom will be marred, or mar the blossom for fear the fruit will be worm eaten. Frost cannot do as much harm after the fruit has set as while the buds and blossoms are growing. Be what you wish your children to be and keep them unconscious, innocent and sunny.

THE road along which the man of business travels in pursuit of competence or wealth is not a Macadamized one, nor does it ordinarily lead through pleasant scenes and by well-springs of delight. On the contrary it is a rough path, beset with "wait-a-bit" thorns and full of pit-falls, which can only be avoided by the watchful care of circumspection. After every day's journey over this worse than rough turnpike roads, the wayfarer needs something more than rest; he requires solace and he deserves it. He is weary of the dull prose of life and a thirst for the poetry. Happy is the man who can find that solace and that poetry at home. Warm greetings from loving hearts, fond glances from bright eyes, the welcome shouts of children, the many thousand little arrangements for our comfort and enjoyment that silently tell of thoughtful and expectant love, the gentle ministrations that disencumber us into an old and easy seat before we are aware of it; these and like tokens of affection and sympathy constitute the poetry which reconcile us to the prose of life. Think of this, ye wives and daughters of business men! Think of the toils, the anxieties, the worries and wear that tatters undergo to secure for you comfortable homes, and compensate them for their trials by making them happy by their firesides.

THE home is what mother makes it, good, bad or indifferent. Government may be corrupt and man degenerate without loss of hope, but when the standard of the home is lowered it is time to think of hopelessness and the end of the sinful world. The home is the bulwark of civilization, and in it should be preserved the best possible means of resistance of any siege that may be set up. Great changes have come in the finish of the nineteenth century, which have developed and broadened woman's relations; her outlook is upon different scenes and possibilities, yet through them all runs the same old woof of wifehood and motherhood, earth's most sacred duties. The question now is not, "Shall woman's field expand?" It has already expanded. The paramount issue is the maintenance of the home. The development of industrial monopolies, where the dollar is almighty, threatens to undermine the home. There is no more menacing fact than this. Evidence exists on every hand that the preservation of the family circle is the problem of the age of commercialism. The best way to become good is to be born good, and the next essentials are the socialism of the home, and the training of the mother, the child's best friend.

IN the marriage vows the little band of gold placed on the bride's finger by the groom is the pledge that the husband has endowed the wife with all his worldly goods; that she has an equal interest in them. Yet with many who say, "With all my worldly goods I thee endow," the words mean nothing, and every dollar spent by the wife in personal adornments or conveniences about the house is grudgingly given, and we dare say if some wives of this community spent as much for sweetmeats and bon bons and ice cream soda as their husbands do for smoke each year, there would go up a howl you could hear for miles from the husbands with extravagant wives; and if the wives and daughters of this community spent as much on chewing gum as the husbands and brothers do for chewing tobacco every year, the bridge would be full of men jumping into the river because their wives spent so much money foolishly. Now we believe when a man asks a young woman to become his wife, and the relationship is consummated in marriage, that the wife has an equal share in the finances of that home. Many wives slave and work for a lifetime. When you find one extravagant, you will find ten careful and economical.

HOW often we hear a young man say, "We haven't been given a chance in life to make anything of ourselves."

We would point that young man to Wm. E. Corey, who last year was elected President of the United States Steel Corporation at a salary almost equal to that of the President of the United States.

You say he had a "pull." He did. Sixteen years ago Corey was pushing a wheelbarrow in the back yards of one of Carnegie's mills at Braddock. This was his "pull." He walked a little faster and put on bigger loads than the men at his elbow and he was soon made foreman over them. In other words he was not afraid to give his employer two dollars worth of work for one dollar, a feat that has taken possession of too many young men in this community. When he became foreman it was noticed that men under him did more work than formerly. He did not swear at his men. They never grumbled at their boss. They respected him and it was a pleasure to work for him. Carnegie began promoting Corey and Corey worked hard. He had only a fair common school education. He studied at night. He took a course in a correspondent school. He became an expert chemist. He was soon authority on armor plate. He knew more about plate than any one in the mills. He was soon made superintendent of that department. He increased the output. That's all. But remember that this was all the result of wheeling more iron ore than the man at his elbow in a back yard at Braddock. Too many of our young men see how small a load they can wheel. To put in the hours and draw their pay is the height of their ambition, and then because they do not prosper like young Corey they imagine they have not been given a fair chance in life.
